REBUILD OUR HEALTHCARE ECONOMY TO PROVIDE CARE FOR MORE NEW YORKERS

All New Yorkers should have access to safe, affordable and high-quality health care. The COVID-19 pandemic taxed an already strained healthcare system, exacerbating disparities and systemic healthcare delivery issues. To invest in the healthcare workforce that protects us, a sweeping set of initiatives aim to rebuild, grow, and retain workers —with the significant goal of growing the workforce by 20 percent over the next five years.

The goal is to advance care for more New Yorkers through a series of actions built around wider access to digital health services, stronger healthcare affordability programs, larger investments in maternal health, holistic plans to support aging populations, and capital investments in hospitals and health systems in underserved communities. Without a strong workforce, New York cannot achieve these ambitious goals. With it, we can do all of it —and lead the nation in equity across the care spectrum.

The need for healthcare workers was projected to grow

32% from 2018 to 2028<sup>1</sup>

Pre-pandemic projections indicated a shortage of over

PROTECT PUBLIC SAFETY AND TAKE STRONG ACTION AGAINST GUN VIOLENCE

PROTECT PUBLIC SAFETY AND TAKE STRONG ACTION AGAINST GUN VIOLENCE

Before the COVID-19 pandemic, more than 800 New Yorkers died by guns each year, on average, with more than 2,500 annually shot and wounded. That was already too many lives lost and impacted by gun violence. Unfortunately, since the pandemic began, gun violence has increased significantly across the United States, and in New York State.

The pandemic has had a negative impact on public safety across the country. To address the concerns of New Yorkers and take strong action against gun violence, the Hochul Administration is committed to making a major state investment in initiatives, new and old, that will strengthen the gun violence prevention efforts of law enforcement and community-based organizations. Through these actions, we will work to restore New Yorkers' sense of safety and community.

PROTECT PUBLIC SAFETY AND TAKE STRONG ACTION

INVEST IN NEW YORK'S COMMUNITIES

The major investments being made in New York's infrastructure and economic revitalization today will chart a course for the safety, mobility, prosperity, and health of New Yorkers tomorrow. MAKE NEW YORK'S HOUSING SYSTEM MORE AFFORDABLE, EQUITABLE, AND STABLE

The uneven economic recovery has underscored the many structural problems facing our state's economy, the housing supply in particular. Housing costs have skyrocketed, with the median sales price rising 32 percent since the start of 2020. Rising homeownership costs are a major barrier to entry for non-owners seeking opportunities for economic advancement and generational wealth-building. Ownership aside, far too many New Yorkers are struggling to pay rent: over half of renters in the State pay more than 30 percent of their income in rent, meaning they are rent burdened.

Improving housing affordability, equity, and stability is a complex challenge that requires an all-levers approach. A sweeping set of actions will be designed to fortify New York's affordable housing stock, promote broader affordability by expanding the housing supply, preserve access and equity for disadvantaged groups, and attack the root causes of homelessness and housing instability.

More than half of New York's renters are considered rent-burdened, paying more than of their income in rent<sup>25</sup> of homes are renter occupied, the highest percentage in the country<sup>26</sup> New York State needs over

600,000

additional affordable rental units27

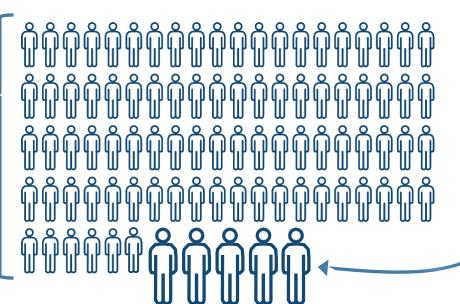

456,000

New Yorkers rely on public assistance for housing, including more than 200,000 children<sup>28</sup>

In New York State, more than individuals experiencing homelessness temporarily stay in emergency shelters <sup>29</sup>

Almost

5,000

remain unsheltered on the street<sup>29</sup>

PART 5-A

REBUILD NEW YORK'S SCHOOL SYSTEM AND REIMAGINE HIGHER EDUCATION

The pandemic created an unprecedented disruption to education in New York State, with the potential to reverberate across our economy for years and limit opportunities for an entire generation of students unless we take action. The pandemic also accelerated a vast teacher shortage that was already facing a steep retirement cliff in the coming years, making any recovery of this learning deficit that much harder.

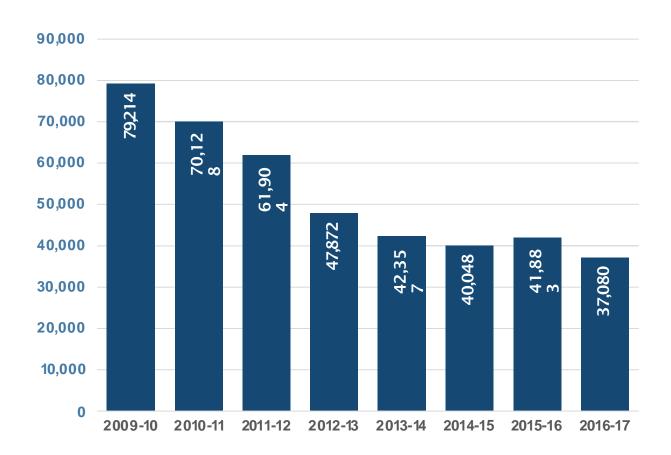

Far more must be done to help New York's young people recover from the pandemic and get on a path to success. We must solve the teacher shortage and help our students through the academic and social-emotional challenges of the pandemic.

Our higher education system must innovate to address structural challenges, focus on meeting the regional needs of today's workforce, and reach new levels of institutional excellence if we want to give our students every possible opportunity and put them at the greatest competitive advantage.

ADVANCE NEW YORK'S PLACE AS A NATIONAL EQUITY MODEL

The events of the past two years have marked a critical, if long overdue, turning point in national awareness of social injustice and inequity. New York has a strong foundation to build on with its Human Rights Law, first passed in 1945 and updated many times since. It is one of the oldest and most expansive anti-discrimination laws in the country. But as the pandemic continues to expose vast disparities in our social and economic systems, and as hate crimes and subtler but no less damaging forms of discrimination continue to harm both New Yorkers and our communities, we must be even more intentional about the actions we take to ensure that our state is truly working on behalf of everyone we have vowed to serve.

In furtherance of its commitment to equity and social justice, New York State will advance a wide-ranging plan to promote and support gender equity, racial equity, antihate, social justice, the LGBTQIA+ community, immigrants and new arrivals, and veterans with the goal of protecting the health, safety, economic opportunities, and fundamental dignity of every New Yorker.

Although New York has narrowed the gender pay gap to be one of the lowest in the nation, women working full-time still only make 85 cents for every dollar a man earns<sup>46</sup>

Nationally, transgender people are at least more likely to be assaulted while incarcerated than the general prison population<sup>47</sup>

By mid-December 2021, 543 hate and biased-incidents were reported to the Division of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) by law enforcement agencies throughout the State an increase of 65%

from 329 incidents in 2020.48

Since the beginning of the pandemic:

The labor force participation rate<sup>49</sup> for women decreased by

The unemployment rate for women<sup>50</sup> increased by

The number of women not in the labor force<sup>51</sup> (not actively seeking work) increased by nearly

43,000

New York has a three-year backlog (4000+) of applications for Minority and Women-Owned Business (MWBE) certifications<sup>52</sup>

PART 8-A

MAKE CRITICAL REFORMS TO RESTORE NEW YORKERS' FAITH IN THEIR GOVERNMENT

Across the country, Americans are in the midst of a historic decline in public trust in government —little wonder given recent political events. Since the 1960s, when up to 77 percent of Americans trusted the federal government to do the right thing, that faith has fallen steadily, settling in the teens and low 20s in recent years. This dramatic decline holds true across both major political parties: it has been more than a decade since more than one-third of either Democrats or Republicans expressed trust in their national leaders.

Trust in State government is generally higher among Americans, but that too is in decline — as of September 2021, it was at its lowest point since 2009. The Hochul Administration has taken steps to restore this faith, including announcing new transparency plans from more than 70 executive agencies and public authorities in October. But as we continue to recover from the social and economic devastation of the pandemic, New Yorkers of all backgrounds, across all parties, and from all regions expect even more from their elected leaders who pledge to serve their best interest.

MAKE CRITICAL REFORMS TO RESTORE NEW YORKERS' FAITH IN THEIR GOVERNMENT

New York's estimated voter turnout for 2020 is 65.3% of eligible voters, ranking New York

30th OUT OF 50 STATES

for voter turnout, and falling below the national average of 66.5%<sup>53</sup>

36

states have term

82%

of New York State voters support term limits<sup>55</sup>

Show the country what good and honest government looks like. Limit statewide elected officials to two consecutive terms. Other key initiatives are designed to overhaul the State's ethics commission and increase transparency through all levels of state government.

- Enact a Two-Term Limit and Ban Outside Income — for Statewide Elected Officials
- Replace J COPE with an Effective Watchdog
- Strengthen Ethics Requirements for Local Officials

- Enact a State-Level Voting Rights Act
- Make Voting Easier by Lowering the Voter Registration Deadline to 10 Days Before an Election
- Require Polling Locations on College Campuses
